Programme Introduction

Creativity, innovation, holistic thinking and the development of the student's personal design philosophy are at the core of this degree programme. The course aims to develop the student's knowledge and skills in fashion design on both an artistic and professional level. Students will be encouraged to research, interpret and develop their own appreciation of the use of traditional techniques, new technologies, materials and innovative design solutions.

Across all three years or four years including FY, students will learn approaches that will enable them to understand the design process from concept, through design to production and product placement. The foundation year will introduce the students to the fashion design process, to give them the grounding to enter Year one. Year one will deliver the core fundamentals, including 2D and 3D, pattern cutting, manufacturing, illustration and introducing the student to a range of processes and materials. Year two will continue to develop the student, with a focus on the fashion industry, through a series of design and live industry projects, advanced pattern cutting, manufacturing, processes and materials workshops. Year two will conclude with a professional practice module which will begin to build industry ready portfolios whilst developing promotional skills. Year three will enable the student to develop their aesthetic style, leading to the completion of a final collection, an industry ready portfolio and promotion package.

Students will be graduating with the skills and experience in creative problem-solving strategies and techniques in pattern cutting, manufacturing, processes and materials, and a clear understanding of how these can be applied to create innovative design solutions.

Distinguishing Features and Key Characteristics of the Programme

This programme aims to enable students to develop creative, technical and professional knowledge and skills appropriate to a career in the fashion industry and related areas.

Distinguishing Features

- Embedding of creative, technical and professional skills, including research, problem-solving, critical reflection, analytical and communication skills required of a fashion graduate preparing to enter the fashion industry.
- Creative and forward-thinking approaches in generating concepts and appropriate solutions in response to briefs and how these can be used in product development, through working in the studio and workshop environments.
- Knowledge of professional practice, innovation, technology and development within the fashion industry relevant to chosen specialisms.
- A solid understanding of the key historical, social, cultural ideas, concepts and issues relevant to contemporary fashion.

Admission Requirements

Applicants will have achieved one of the following:

- Two full A-Levels and GCSE Maths and English at Grade C or above
- UCAS Tariff score of 80-96
- Foundation diploma in Art and Design
- BTEC, National Diploma or equivalent

Applications are welcome from those who may not possess formal entry qualifications, mature students, or with qualifications different to those listed. Such applicants should demonstrate their potential to complete the course successfully at interview stage

- Successful applicants will attend an interview with portfolio.

International students may be Skype interviewed or may send an electronic portfolio. All international applicants should have English language to IELTS level 6.

Recognition of Prior Learning

Students may be admitted to any Level of the programme which is considered suitable, after portfolio review and interview using the APL process.

Learning, Teaching and Assessment Methods to achieve the Programme Learning Outcomes

How students will learn:

The Art & Design sector benchmarks acknowledge that teaching, learning and assessment regimes adopted in the sector will embrace a wide range of approaches around a core of studio and workshop tuition, where currency will be maintained by strong links with allied professions and practitioners. The School's courses are practice based, supported by contextual studies, and are structured to prepare students to take increasing responsibility for the content and direction of their creative work, and to become increasingly independent in their studies as the course progresses. Such self-directed and self-initiated study programmes are the primary means by which a student's independent learning skills develop, and culminate with the public exhibition of a student's body of work.

The teaching, learning and assessment methodologies used within the School and detailed below, are consistent with those described in the Benchmarks. Practical studio based projects are the principal vehicle for teaching and learning; These are either tutor initiated or live industry projects comprising the presentation of a creative problem, resolved through information delivered by lecture or seminar, supported by personal research and informed by studio-based activities. Learning is further developed through group critique, and through personal development supported by individual tutorial. The course operates a regime of formative and summative assessment, which allows students to develop their work continuously with clear tutorial guidance.

The teaching strategies employed throughout the course are those judged to be the most appropriate for each module at each stage and Level of the course. They include the following:

- 1-1 and Group Tutorials
- Studio-based lectures (staff and student led)
- Masterclasses
- Group seminars (staff and student led)
- Technical or practical workshops
- Demonstrations
- Visits to and from industry professionals and practitioners
- Live projects and competitions
- E-Learning (BlackBoard) and Resource based learning
- Self-directed study

How will students be assessed

Formative, summative and diagnostic assessment are regarded as positive learning tools and feedback from assessment offers students clear guidance with regard to future development. Assessment strategies support students' understanding of their learning processes and are designed to foster a deep approach to learning. Strategies also promote autonomous learning and self-evaluation as vital elements within the overall learning process. Self- and peer-evaluation constitute an important part of formative assessment and, on occasion, of the formal summative assessment process.

Assessment criteria accommodate the speculative enquiry common to most disciplines in art and design, and provide fair and accurate assessment of team work and individual contributions to the overall outcome of collaborative projects.

Feedback on assessed work is an important feature of students' learning. Art and design has a strong tradition of providing students with comprehensive oral feedback through tutorials and critiques, but written feedback has increasingly supplemented this predominantly oral tradition, reflecting the art and design community's awareness of good practice in teaching, learning and assessment. Support systems at institutional and discipline levels identify student needs and provide relevant help and advice for both academic and pastoral matters. Research indicates that dyslexia is more prevalent amongst students of art and design than in other subjects, and the university has a Learning Development Unit and Student Services who are experienced in enabling support for individual needs.

Work-Based / Placement Learning

Although work placements are not essential to completion of the course, they are recommended for the summer period following the completion of level 5 of the course. Additionally, students are very much encouraged to engage with work-based learning opportunities at Levels 5 and 6 of the course, which will contribute to their development on the Professional Studies and Professional Practice modules. Whilst individual initiative is encouraged, students will be given support on locating a suitable position and on making a professional application.
